Dear Environmental Protection Agency:

The toxins in the Super Fund site along the Willamette river will not "heal themselves" in my lifetime, nor in the lifetimes of my children or their childrens' children. The big polluters who generated this toxic soup now want to have us – and you – believe that if we are patient the problem will just go away. The reasons for their point of view are obvious and noxious.

Environmental Protection Agency has the responsibility to protect the environment. You should do your job and require that this toxic site be cleaned up, and soon.

Sincerely,
